Learning Disabilities Simulation

Presented By The St. Louis Learning Disabilities Association

Wednesday, July 17th, 2013

6:00 PM - 7:30 PM

Learn What it Actually Feels Like to be a Student with a Learning Disability

Workshop: Learning Disabilities Simulation Wednesday, July 17th 6:00PM – 7:30PM $35.00

Join us for this interactive workshop hosted by the St. Louis Learning Disabilities Association. This class is designed for both teachers and parents to give them a greater awareness of various learning disabilities. This full-participation workshop will have adults completing activities designed to make them feel as if they have a learning disability and/or ADHD and will simulate the fear, anxiety, and tension struggling students experience in the classroom.

Presenter

Pamela Ritterling has been an educational consultant/program coordinator for St. Louis Learning Disabilities Association for four years. She comes to LDA with twenty+ years experience in the education field. With a dual degree in both regular and special education, she has used her skills teaching in four states (Age 2 through High School), serving as a preschool director, and as a family care provider. She loves teaching and considers the world her classroom!

Location

This workshop will take place at our in-store classroom: The Teachers' Lounge • 21 Ronnies Plaza • St. Louis, MO 63126

Participants Will Receive
